Richly decorated in the tradition of André-Charles Boulle, this pair of vintage French Louis XV style side tables combines intricate brass inlay with a contrasting black lacquered finish. Crafted in France circa 1950, each rectangular table features a gracefully shaped top, scalloped apron, and four slender cabriole legs embellished with gilt bronze mounts.

The tops are decorated with elaborate brass marquetry featuring scrolling foliage, arabesques, and symmetrical floral motifs against a vibrant red and black ground. Matching decorative panels adorn the front aprons, sides, and upper legs, creating a harmonious design throughout. Each table is fitted with a single drawer featuring two ornate gilt bronze handles, providing convenient storage while preserving the refined silhouette.

The curved legs are further embellished with finely cast gilt bronze foliate mounts at the shoulders and decorative sabots at the feet. The combination of richly patterned brass inlay, bold red accents, and polished black surfaces reflects the decorative tradition of French Boulle furniture.

Ideal as end tables beside a sofa or as matching nightstands in a bedroom, these vintage tables are in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, retaining their rich black finish, intricate brass decoration, and attractive gilt bronze mounts.
