A refined French Louis XV walnut side table crafted circa 1780, offering elegant proportions and timeless provincial character. The rectangular plank top features softly rounded corners and a subtle molded edge, all showcasing a warm and rich walnut patina developed over time. The single drawer is centered within a gently scalloped apron, fitted with its original iron pull, adding both function and authentic charm.

Raised on four slender cabriole legs, the table reflects the fluid, serpentine lines typical of the Louis XV period, where curves and movement replaced rigid symmetry. The construction details reveal traditional joinery, including pegged mortise-and-tenon connections, further supporting its 18th-century origin. The underside shows honest craftsmanship and age, while the top presents expected wear consistent with use, enhancing its character.

This antique side table is in excellent condition commensurate with age and use and would work beautifully as a bedside table, end table, or occasional side table in a bedroom or living room. Its light footprint and elegant silhouette make it especially versatile in both classic and transitional interiors.
