Bring understated provincial character to a dining room or kitchen with this handsome antique trestle refectory monastery dining table, crafted in France circa 1880 from solid bleached oak in the traditional French Provincial farmhouse style. The rectangular plank top showcases beautiful end-grain patterns, gentle wear, and visible wooden pegs, all testifying to decades of use and giving the piece a warm, timeworn patina. The table rests on sculptural carved trestle bases joined by a thick center stretcher, each support finished with shaped feet and traditional mortise-and-tenon joinery. Forged iron diamond-shaped nails punctuate the top and base, adding subtle decorative interest and reinforcing the table's authentic rural construction. Sturdy, well-proportioned, and full of rustic charm, this French table would anchor a dining area, breakfast nook, wine cellar, or country-style kitchen with enduring elegance. Measures: 90.5" W x 33.75" D x 30.5" H.
