A charming French Louis Philippe bedside table crafted in wild cherry circa 1840, featuring a clean, functional silhouette rooted in provincial design. The rectangular plank top with softly eased edges sits above a single drawer, fitted with a simple turned wood knob, emphasizing utility and honest craftsmanship.

Raised on four slender, turned legs with subtle ring details, the piece reflects the restrained elegance of the Louis Philippe period, where decoration gives way to balanced proportions and everyday practicality. The cherry wood displays a warm, time-softened patina with beautiful grain variation throughout, adding depth and character.

Traditional construction is evident in the pegged joinery and hand-finished interior of the drawer. The top shows expected wear including stains and marks from daily use, all consistent with its age and adding to its authentic antique appeal.

Ideal as a bedside table, end table, or placed beside a reading chair, this antique piece offers both function and understated French charm. It is in excellent condition commensurate with age and use.
