Crafted in the Burgundy region of France circa 1870, this refined antique wall mirror reflects the understated elegance of the Louis Philippe period. The rectangular frame features softly rounded corners and is finished in luminous silver leaf, applied over finely engraved floral and geometric motifs. A delicate beaded molding surrounds the mirror plate, providing subtle definition and balance. The mirror retains its original mercury glass, presenting a softly aged, silvery reflection with gentle spotting consistent with age and use. The original wood backing remains intact, underscoring its authenticity and period construction. The silvered surface displays a bright, time-earned patina that enhances the mirror's warmth and character. New hanging wire has been professionally installed on the back for secure and easy mounting. Perfectly scaled for a powder room, dressing area, hallway, or above a small console or chest, this antique Louis Philippe mirror brings quiet French refinement and timeless appeal to intimate interior settings.
