Crafted in the Burgundy region of France circa 1860, this elegant antique Louis Philippe wall mirror stands over five feet tall and features the timeless simplicity characteristic of the period. The large rectangular mirror is distinguished by its softly rounded upper corners and thick molded frame, beautifully finished in a two-tone palette of warm beige and light brown.

The substantial frame features gently curved molding with a subtle recessed profile, creating an understated yet sophisticated appearance. The original painted finish has developed a rich, naturally aged patina, with delicate variations in color that enhance the mirror's authentic French country charm. The mirror retains its original mercury glass, displaying subtle signs of aging that contribute to its antique character. The back features the original parquet wood panel construction, a testament to traditional 19th-century French craftsmanship.

The antique Louis Philippe mirror is in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, with a beautifully preserved painted finish. A new hanging wire has been installed on the back for convenient installation. Versatile in both traditional and contemporary interiors, this substantial mirror would make an elegant addition to an entryway, above a fireplace mantel, in a bedroom, or in a spacious powder room.
