Elegant and understated, this 19th-century side table desk was crafted in the Poitou region of France circa 1840 during the Louis Philippe period. Made from solid walnut, the piece features a rectangular top hewn from a single plank, showcasing expressive grain patterns and a rich, hand-rubbed patina developed over time. The table stands on four slightly tapered legs and displays the clean lines and functional elegance characteristic of Louis Philippe design. A long drawer spans the front apron, fitted with a turned wooden knob and offering practical storage for writing instruments or small essentials. In excellent condition commensurate with age and use, the table retains its original finish with minor wear that enhances its authentic charm. Versatile in scale and purpose, it works beautifully as a writing desk, side table, or nightstand in both classic and transitional interiors. Measures: 39.25” W x 19.75” D x 26.75” H
