Crafted in France circa 1850, this elegant antique Louis Philippe table is built in solid wild cherry, a wood favored in provincial furniture for its durability and warm, luminous tone. The rectangular top showcases rich honey and amber hues with expressive grain, knots, and natural age marks that enhance its authentic character.. The clean apron rests on four straight, gently tapered legs, creating a balanced and practical silhouette. Its simple lines and generous knee clearance allow it to function beautifully as a small writing desk, laptop table, or intimate study table while remaining equally suited as a side or occasional table. The underside reveals traditional 19th century joinery and solid plank construction, confirming its antique craftsmanship. The occasional table is in excellent antique condition commensurate with age and use, ideal for a study, bedroom, or refined sitting room. Dimensions: 37"W x 24"D x 28.25"H.
