Crafted in Provence, southern France, circa 1880, this elegant antique console table exemplifies the graceful curves and decorative refinement of the Louis XV style. The rectangular table stands on four beautifully shaped cabriole legs, each embellished with carved acanthus leaves at the shoulders and terminating in distinctive scroll-form escargot feet. The scalloped apron is richly decorated with a central carved shell motif surrounded by delicate foliate and acorn garlands, while the shaped side aprons complement the table's flowing silhouette.

The table is fitted with a substantial, beautifully contoured Brèche d'Alep marble top, featuring a striking composition of ochre, rust, cream, grey, and brown mineral fragments. Quarried in the Bouches-du-Rhône region of southern France, this distinctive marble was highly prized by French cabinetmakers and decorators during the 18th and 19th centuries. Its richly variegated surface provides a beautiful contrast to the warm ochre-yellow painted base.

The original-style painted finish features subtle two-tone coloration, with darker accents highlighting the intricate carvings and a softly distressed patina that enhances its authentic Provençal character.

The antique table is in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, retaining a wonderful aged patina throughout. With its generous proportions, elegant carved details, and richly colored marble top, this versatile piece would make a beautiful center table in a living room, an impressive entryway table, or a refined addition to a traditional dining room.

Dimensions: 60"W x 31"D x 32"H.
