Crafted in Provence, Southern France, circa 1880, this elegant antique bistro table features a beautifully shaped cast iron base supporting its original rectangular white marble top with delicate grey veining. Combining the graceful curves of the Louis XV style with the rustic charm of French provincial furniture, the table offers both decorative appeal and versatility.

The ornate cast iron trestle base features two sculptural supports embellished with scrolling motifs, cabriole legs, and gracefully curled feet. The supports are connected by a long horizontal stretcher reinforced with diagonal iron braces, providing stability while maintaining an open, airy silhouette. The original hand-painted green finish has developed a rich, aged patina, highlighting the intricate scrollwork and decorative details.

The rectangular marble top features softly rounded corners, subtle grey veining, and a smooth, naturally aged surface. A few old chips along the edges have softened over time, adding authentic character to this 19th-century piece (see detailed images).

Perfect as a French pastry table in a kitchen, a small breakfast or bistro table, or an occasional console against a wall, this charming Provençal table would also complement a covered terrace or garden room.

The antique table is in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, retaining its original painted finish and marble top.
