Elevate a bar, dining table, or coffee service with this elegant antique French silver plated serving tray by Christofle, crafted circa 1870. Of generous rectangular form with softly rounded corners, the tray is framed with ornate scrolling handles and a richly worked border featuring repoussé foliate decoration, adding depth and movement to the silhouette. The surface is centered with an engraved cartouche, delicately embellished with floral sprays and Rococo-inspired scrollwork, offering space for presentation or monogram display. The field is further enhanced by a subtle radiating pattern that catches the light beautifully across the polished surface.
Recently re-silvered, the tray presents a bright, refined finish while retaining light surface marks consistent with age and use. The underside bears Christofle stamps and numbering, confirming authenticity and quality.
A timeless and highly functional piece, ideal for serving, display, or as a sophisticated bar tray.
