Crafted in Italy circa 1880, this elegant antique walnut dining table showcases the bold architectural lines and elaborate carving characteristic of the Italian Baroque style. Measuring over six and a half feet in length, the rectangular refectory table features a thick two-boards walnut top with molded edges, displaying a rich, warm patina that highlights the natural grain and character of the wood.

The table rests on two distinctive lyre-shaped trestle supports, beautifully carved with scrolling contours and decorative cutouts. The sculptural legs are joined by an elaborate carved cross stretcher, embellished with flowing scrollwork and a central foliate motif. Gracefully curved braces rise toward the underside of the tabletop, providing additional support while enhancing the table's architectural appeal. Exposed wooden tenons and traditional joinery further emphasize its craftsmanship and rustic character.

With its generous proportions, the antique refectory table comfortably accommodates six guests, with room for eight, making it ideal for a dining room, breakfast room, or country kitchen. Its elegant Baroque silhouette would also make it an attractive library or center table.

The Italian walnut table is in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, and adorns a beautiful, rich walnut patina with natural surface variations consistent with its age.
