Bring Parisian charm to your space with this elegant bistro table from the Napoleon III period, crafted in France circa 1880. The inset round white marble top is accented with soft gray veining and enclosed within a fluted brass rim, adding a refined decorative edge. A subtle surface discoloration testifies to its authentic age and use. The table is supported by a slender iron pedestal with gilt accents, resting on a finely cast tripartite base adorned with stylized French dolphin motifs, an ornamental flourish emblematic of the Second Empire aesthetic. The iron retains its original black finish with gilt highlights that enhance its antique appeal. Measuring 20 inches in diameter and 27 inches high, this petite guéridon is ideal for a breakfast nook, covered terrace, or as a decorative accent table. Good condition commensurate with age and use. Stain on the top. See detailed images.
