This elegant antique bedside table, crafted circa 1820 in Provence, offers a refined and practical form with graceful proportions. Raised on slender cabriole legs, the piece features a shaped apron with soft curves that create a light, fluid silhouette typical of the style, while maintaining a sturdy and balanced presence. Its scale makes it ideal as a bedside table or occasional side table rather than a writing surface.

Constructed of walnut, the Louis XV table showcases a warm and rich patina with beautiful grain movement throughout the top and apron. The rectangular surface with gently rounded corners sits above a single drawer, fitted with a simple round wooden pull. Traditional craftsmanship is evident in the hand-cut dovetail joinery, adding both strength and authenticity to the piece.

The bedside table is in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, with minor wear consistent with time that enhances its character. Versatile and functional, it would work beautifully next to a bed, between two chairs, or placed in a hallway for a touch of understated French elegance.
