Bring rustic elegance to your dining space with this early 20th-century French refectory table, crafted circa 1920 in the Louis XIII style. Constructed from solid oak and bleached to a light, natural finish, the table features a thick rectangular top measuring over 2.5 inches in depth, showcasing the quality and weight of traditional joinery. The surface is accented with exposed iron diamond nailheads and hand-pegged detailing that continues through the base, reinforcing its authentic craftsmanship. Supported by bold baluster-shaped trestle legs joined by a sturdy center stretcher, the design evokes the timeless simplicity and strength of French farmhouse tradition. The carved plinth bases add sculptural interest, while the distressed surface offers a soft matte sheen with visible grain, knots, and natural wear, adding to its antique charm. Measuring 86.5 inches long by 36.5 inches wide and 30 inches high, this substantial table comfortably seats eight to ten guests. Ideal for a rustic kitchen, wine cellar, or elegant country dining room. Excellent condition commensurate with age and use.
