Add vintage character to a garden, patio, or terrace with this unusual antique French iron bench. Crafted in France circa 1920, the long garden bench features a continuous curved seat and backrest made of perforated sheet iron, creating a distinctive openwork design. The sculptural structure is supported by four splayed iron legs with curved brackets, providing stability while maintaining a light, airy appearance.

The bench retains its original weathered painted finish in faded lavender and pink tones, with traces of green paint showing through. Areas of oxidation, chipping, and natural wear enhance its authentic timeworn character and reflect decades of outdoor use. The gently curved profile and perforated surface give the piece a distinctive early 20th-century industrial aesthetic.

The antique garden bench is in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, with a richly distressed painted patina. Measuring over six feet long, it would make a striking addition to a garden, covered porch, or outdoor seating area.
