Crafted in France circa 1920, this charming antique garden statue depicts a young boy carrying a generous basket overflowing with grapes, a traditional symbol of abundance and the harvest. Made of cast stone, the substantial sculpture captures the rustic charm and timeless appeal of French garden ornamentation.

The young figure stands in a relaxed pose, with one leg gracefully bent and crossed in front of the other. Dressed in a simple tunic with rolled sleeves and loose trousers, the boy holds a large basket filled with finely detailed clusters of grapes. His head is gently turned to the side, revealing softly modeled facial features, expressive eyes, and thick, wavy hair. The figure rests against a sculpted tree trunk, providing both decorative interest and structural support, and stands on an integral square base.

The sculpture retains a wonderful weathered patina, with natural discoloration, mossy green tones, and surface texture acquired from decades of outdoor exposure. These aged characteristics enhance its authentic French country appeal.

The antique statue is in excellent condition commensurate with age and use. Ideal for placement in a garden, courtyard, patio, or among flowering plants, it would also make a decorative addition to a sunroom or conservatory.

Weight: 76 pounds.
