Crafted in France circa 1920, this elegant chandelier exemplifies the artistry of early 20th-century ironwork. The light fixture features a scrolled and symmetrical frame adorned with hand-forged floral and acanthus leaf motifs. Each of the six curved arms supports a candle-style light with decorative wax sleeves, arranged around a central stem embellished with repoussé rosettes and leaf appliqué. The dark patinated finish is enriched with gilt accents that highlight the intricate ironwork, creating a subtle play of light and depth. Newly wired for modern use, this chandelier combines rustic warmth with refined French craftsmanship, ideal for a dining room, entryway, or library with traditional or Old-World character. Measures: 28" diameter x 28" height.
