Crafted in France circa 2010, this elegant French butcher or pastry table, known as a "Table de Boucher," combines traditional craftsmanship with refined decorative appeal. The rectangular table stands on four gracefully scrolled wrought iron legs, joined by an intricate network of curved stretchers embellished with decorative bronze rosettes, gilt finials, and ornamental mounts. The beautifully executed base features a rich polished black and silver steel finish, enhanced by contrasting gilt bronze accents.

The table is further distinguished by its elaborate scalloped cast metal apron, decorated on all four sides with continuous scrolling foliage, floral motifs, and prominent shell and acanthus leaf designs. The intricate detailing adds a sophisticated French character to this substantial and functional piece.

The surface is fitted with a thick rectangular white marble top, displaying delicate natural veining and a carved groove running around the perimeter. Traditionally found on French butcher tables, this practical feature was designed to collect juices during meat preparation while providing an attractive decorative border.

The elegant table is in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, retaining its beautiful polished finish and gilt accents. Perfect as a kitchen island, pastry preparation table, or freestanding serving table, it could also serve as a decorative console in a spacious entryway or dining room.
