Add timeless French country charm to a kitchen island or breakfast counter with this elegant set of four Louis XV-style counter stools. Crafted in France circa 1960, each stool is built of solid walnut and stands on graceful cabriole legs joined by double stretchers for strength and stability. The shaped aprons are embellished with hand-carved shell and scrolling foliate motifs, adding subtle decorative detail characteristic of the Louis XV style.

The square seats retain their beautifully handwoven rush upholstery in a striking geometric pattern, bringing warmth, texture, and authentic provincial character to the set. The sculpted walnut frames showcase a rich, warm patina that complements both traditional and transitional interiors with ease.

Comfortable and versatile, these antique-style stools are ideal for use around a kitchen island, breakfast counter, bar area, or casual dining space. The stools are in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, and adorn a rich walnut patina with beautifully preserved woven rush seats.
