Bring rustic elegance to your interior with this distinctive mid-century French stool. Crafted circa 1950, the piece features a sculptural base composed of naturally shed deer antlers, artfully intertwined to form a stable tripod structure. Each antler varies in curve and texture, lending the stool a unique, organic silhouette rooted in Alpine tradition. The round seat is upholstered in genuine deer hide, showcasing soft tan coloration with characteristic white spots that add both warmth and visual depth. The hide is tightly wrapped for a clean, tailored look that complements the raw beauty of the antler base. In excellent condition commensurate with age and use, this antique-style stool is ideal for a rustic lodge, chalet, or eclectic interior. A rare blend of functionality and sculptural artistry. 17.5" diameter x 19"H (seat height: 19")
