This elegant antique French pedestal table was crafted in the mid-century period, circa 1960, and draws its inspiration from classic Louis XV design. The round form is both graceful and sculptural, featuring a hand-painted wood top with a softly aged patina that adds warmth and depth. The cylindrical body is wrapped in finely woven cane, showcasing excellent craftsmanship and creating a light, textural contrast against the painted surface. The table rests on four gently cabriole legs, each adorned with subtle carved detailing and finished in a complementary painted surface with intentional wear that enhances its antique character. The open cane sides allow light to pass through, giving the piece an airy presence while maintaining visual interest from every angle. The painted top shows expected surface wear consistent with age and use, contributing to its authentic mid-century French appeal. Both decorative and functional, this antique table is ideal as a side table, pedestal, or accent stand in a living room, bedroom, or entryway. Its compact footprint and refined Louis XV-style lines make it a versatile addition to both traditional and eclectic interiors. Dimensions: 11.5" diameter x 24" H
