Crafted in France circa 1970, this elegant set of six Louis XVI style side chairs features the classic oval medallion backs that define the refined neoclassical aesthetic. The frames are finished in a soft white painted surface, highlighting the clean lines and restrained ornamentation associated with the Louis XVI revival.

Each chair is constructed with molded seat rails accented by carved corner blocks, and raised on slender tapering fluted legs ending in traditional arrow feet. The proportions are graceful and balanced, offering both visual lightness and comfortable seating.

The oval backs and generously padded seats are upholstered in a subtle geometric patterned fabric in soft neutral tones, which complements the painted finish and enhances their bright, sophisticated presence. The upholstery remains in good condition overall, with some wear and imperfections consistent with age and use.

This antique set is sturdy and well constructed, with a desirable mid-century interpretation of a classic French form. Ideal around a dining or breakfast table, these chairs bring timeless elegance and versatility to any interior. Some staining and holes on the fabric - see detailed images.
