Decorate a dressing room, bedroom, or feminine study with this charming pair of antique French fashion engravings, signed in plate by Anaïs Toudouze and printed in France circa 1880. Each hand-colored illustration captures elegant Parisian ladies in elaborate gowns of the late 19th century, showcasing the refined silhouettes, layered fabrics, and intricate accessories that defined French haute couture of the era. The first print depicts two women in fitted bodices and fur-trimmed outerwear, while the second scene presents a graceful interior tableau featuring a lady arranging flowers beside a seated companion in a tailored walking dress. Both engravings are set under protective glass within deep walnut frames accented with gilt liners and cream mats, giving the pair a warm and sophisticated presentation suitable for traditional or boutique-style interiors. The artworks show gentle toning consistent with age, and the frames are in very good condition. Dimensions (each): 18.5" W × 21" H.
