Decorate a study, office, or den with this charming pair of antique Flemish style paintings, crafted circa 1860 and set in their original richly carved giltwood frames. Each composition is painted on copper and depicts lively tavern interiors with peasants gathered around a table, drinking and smoking in the manner of David Teniers the Younger.

The scenes are animated with expressive faces, warm interior lighting, and finely detailed period attire, capturing the convivial spirit of 17th century genre painting. Executed with precise brushwork on copper, the surfaces offer a smooth, luminous finish that enhances depth and color saturation.

The substantial frames feature deep molding with fluted and foliate motifs, finished in a warm gold leaf with a beautifully aged patina that complements the richness of the paintings. Both antique artworks are in excellent condition commensurate with age and use.
