Pair of French cast iron garden urns on separate plinth bases, crafted circa 1870 in the Neoclassical style. Each urn features an elegantly flared campana form with fluted body, egg-and-dart rim, and lobed socle resting on a square foot. The removable plinth bases are stepped and molded, providing both height and presence while allowing the urns to be displayed with or without them. Retaining a later matte black finish, the surfaces show light oxidation inside the bowls consistent with age and outdoor use. Measuring 20.5" high overall with an 11.5" diameter, these urns are perfectly scaled for flanking an entry, accenting a terrace, or showcasing seasonal plantings. Their timeless form and sturdy 19th-century construction ensure enduring decorative appeal in both traditional and modern garden settings. Sold as a pair.
