This pair of antique garden urns was crafted in Normandy, France, circa 1880. Made of hand-carved stone, each urn features a classic Campana form with a lobed body and wide, rounded rim. Resting on a square plinth base, the shapely silhouette is ideal for displaying plants or flowers. The weathered finish and aged patina, ranging from mossy green to timeworn gray, enhance their rustic charm and authenticity. Designed with drainage holes and substantial weight, these outdoor planters are both practical and enduring. Their proportions (20.5" diameter x 17.5" high) make them well-suited for use flanking an entryway, lining a garden path, or anchoring a terrace with antique European character. Excellent condition commensurate with age and outdoor use.
