Accessorize an office or library shelving with this pair of small bronze statues mounted on wooden plinths. Each statue depicts a figure from classical antiquity: the one on the left appears to be a Roman gladiator, holding a shield and wearing a traditional short tunic, while the figure on the right resembles a Roman emperor or general, dressed in a military cuirass with a raised arm, possibly in a gesture of command or victory. The craftsmanship is detailed, capturing the historical essence of the Roman era, and the statues' elegant bases provide a refined display for these figures. The decorative objects are in excellent condition. 11.5"H
