Place this pair of antique French garden vases on a terrace, flanking an entry, or nestled into a landscaped setting for instant old-world charm. Crafted in France circa 1950, each piece is hand cast in concrete and stands on a classical gadrooned pedestal over a square base, supporting a richly sculpted fruit basket form. The tops are abundantly decorated with high-relief clusters of apples, pears, grapes, and foliage, evoking traditional harvest motifs found in French garden ornamentation.

The composition is both sculptural and decorative, offering strong visual texture from every angle. The surfaces are beautifully timeworn, with a weathered patina throughout, showcasing areas of natural wear, light surface erosion, and aged discoloration that enhance their authenticity and outdoor appeal.

The antique vases are in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, and each adorns a soft, weathered stone finish. Sturdy and substantial, each piece weighs 98 pounds, making them ideal for exterior use, though equally striking indoors in a conservatory or garden room.
