Decorate a console, dining table, or bar with this elegant pair of antique French swan planters, crafted circa 1960. Formed in heavy copper and finished in a rich silvered surface, each sculptural bird is beautifully detailed with layered featherwork, a gracefully arched neck, and finely modeled head. The wings rise along the sides to create a scalloped-edge vessel, blending decorative artistry with practical function.

Substantial in weight at approximately 28 pounds each, these pieces have an impressive presence and stability. The silvered copper finish has developed a soft, time-earned patina with subtle tonal variation that enhances the depth of the repoussé-style feather detailing. The interiors are smooth and generously sized, making the pair ideal as cachepots, floral vessels, or striking decorative centerpieces.

These antique French swan planters are in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, and retain a luminous, aged surface throughout.
