Crafted circa 2000, this elegant set of four Louis XVI style bar stools combines classic French craftsmanship with a charming, updated look. Built of solid oak, each tall stool features a traditional oval medallion back, gracefully curved for comfort and support. The refined frames stand on slender tapered and fluted legs, embellished with hand-carved floral rosette medallions at the shoulders and joined by sturdy wooden stretchers. A straight front footrest provides additional comfort and stability.

The generously padded seats and oval backs are upholstered in attractive light blue fabric decorated with small cream-colored polka dots. Matching fabric piping outlines the upholstered surfaces, creating a tailored appearance that complements the elegant proportions of the stools. The carved oak frames retain a beautiful weathered, whitewashed finish, highlighting the natural wood grain and delicate details of the Louis XVI design.

The vintage bar stools are in excellent condition commensurate with age and use, with sturdy frames and comfortable upholstered seats. Measuring 29.5 inches in seat height, they are ideally suited for a kitchen island, breakfast bar, or home bar approximately 40 to 42 inches high. Their combination of French neoclassical styling, soft blue upholstery, and naturally aged oak finish makes them a wonderful addition to both traditional and contemporary interiors.
